IN 45 YEARS

Ann Kim

infospinachstuff@gmail.com

2026

1. INT. UMMA'S ROOM

FADE IN ON FLOWERS

NIGHTSTAND

CLOSE UP ON YOUNGER AND OLDER ANN'S EYES

YOUNGER ANN (VOICE OVER)
I've aged to look more like my parents than I ever expected.

YOUNGER ANN (VOICE OVER)
We extend our hands—palms down—almost in sync.

INSERT SHOT OF HANDS

YOUNGER ANN (VOICE OVER)
We don't touch—heavens no, lest we disrupt the fabric of spacetime.

FULL FRAME OF ANN'S FACE, DUBBED OVER.

YOUNGER ANN
I get the feeling you're going to tell me I have all the answers and I should trust myself or something.

TIGHT CLOSE UP ON OLDER ANN'S LIPS MOUTHING:

OLDER ANN
(Chuckling)
Yeah, pretty much.

FULL FRAME OF ANN'S FACE.

YOUNGER ANN
Would you say you're at peace?

TIGHT CLOSE UP ON OLDER ANN'S EYES LOOKING UP.

OLDER ANN
(Humming)
Yeah, I'd say I'm at peace.

Beat.

OLDER ANN LOOKS DIRECTLY AT YOUNGER ANN.

OLDER ANN
Are you?

"Are you?" is in black and white, text.

PAUSE

BUS SCENES. RUNNING.

YOUNGER ANN
Well, I try to. Sometimes, I feel at peace; other times, I feel like my legs can't keep up with my heart. I have a lot of wanderlust. I think that's just part of growing up.

OLDER ANN
Even now, peace isn’t permanent. It ebbs and flows.

POWERLINES

BEST MOM EVER SIGN

MOM CARDS

YOUNGER ANN
Has my parenting advice in my journals been of any use?

OLDER ANN
(grinning)
Looking back on it, some of it doesn’t make sense, but others... I’m glad you wrote them down.

YOUNGER ANN meets OLDER ANN's gase again and notices her parents' features reflected in her face.

YOUNGER ANN
(in Korean)
When did our mom pass away?

OLDER ANN'S EXPRESSION FALTERS. HER EYES GET SLIGHTLY TEARY.

Insert shots of windchimes or contrails/birds.

YOUNGER ANN
I’m not sure how long I’m meant to stay, but let’s watch the sunset together.

2. EXT. OUTDOORS

INSERT SHOT OF SUNSET